

Please note the following opportunity from the MA in Arts Management Program at
Claremont Graduate University

POSITION ANNOUNCEMENT

VISITING POSITION IN ARTS MANAGEMENT

The Masters in Arts Management Program of Claremont Graduate University, the only program of its kind in California, seeks an outstanding artist, arts manager or academic who is a thought leader in the field for a visiting appointment in arts management in 2011 – 2012. This is a special opportunity for a practitioner or scholar in the field to create a residency or project of their own design that will invigorate the more than 40 students in the Arts Management program. The appointment may be part-time (one semester) or full time (both semesters) based on the proposal submitted. It is anticipated that the visiting artist, arts manager or scholar will teach a practicum, in addition to conducting research or work that will further his or her own practice working in conjunction with the graduate students in the program. The successful candidate will be expected to advise and mentor arts management students relative to their careers and issues in the art world. Activities may also include special seminars or colloquia and participation in department and university functions. However, it is expected that the selected candidate will play a key role in shaping the specific activities that will constitute the residency.

For further information about the Arts Management Program, visit our Web site at www.cgu.edu/am.

Preference will be given to candidates who are nationally or internationally recognized in their field and have crossed boundaries of discipline or have developed new models in their work. Candidates should have advanced degrees or a substantial body of work as a practitioner in their field. Teaching experience at the graduate level/executive level is preferred. Candidates must demonstrate an ability to make their intellectual contributions accessible to both graduate students and experienced nonprofit managers. Faculty members on sabbatical are encouraged to apply. Members of underrepresented minorities are especially encouraged to apply.

Applicants should submit a letter explaining why this position is of particular interest and how it will influence both their work and the field, C.V., and a list of three references with noted past relationships; at least one of these references should address teaching or mentoring abilities. In addition, responders may submit a proposed scope of work or the conception for a project that will bring exciting capital to the Arts Management program; however, it is not required. Nominations will also be accepted.

Nominations or applications should be sent to:

Laura Zucker, Director of the Arts Management Program
Faculty Search Committee
Claremont Graduate University
1021 North Dartmouth Avenue
Claremont, CA 91711 , USA

You may also send an email to: diana.luna@cgu.edu

Review of applications will begin December 1, 2010 and will continue until the position is filled. Please visit our Web site for more information about this position: www.cgu.edu/sah/jobs.

Founded in 1925, Claremont Graduate University is an independent institution devoted entirely to graduate study; currently more than 2,000 students are studying for Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees in 22 disciplines. Located 35 miles east of Los Angeles, CGU is part of a liberal arts consortium commonly known as The Claremont Colleges.

CGU has long been characterized by its engagement with real world issues. The University attracts students who are committed to using an advanced education to make a difference in the communities in which they live. The curriculum prepares a diverse group of outstanding individuals to assume leadership roles in the worldwide community through research, teaching, and practice in selected fields.

CGU's School of the Arts and Humanities comprises the departments of Art, Arts Management, Applied Women's Studies, Cultural Studies, English, Music, History, and Philosophy. These departments offer a blend of theoretical and applied studies including areas of interest such as literature and film, American studies, early modern studies, oral history, museum studies and archival sciences. The campus environment promotes a shared intellectual experience across disciplines offered at the other eight schools within the University. Classes are small and student-centered, and the course of study can be customized to meet individual students' research interests.

CGU's Peter F. Drucker and Masatoshi Ito Graduate School of Management has nearly 4,000 alumni around the globe, many of whom are leaders in business, government, and the nonprofit sector. The school is known for its innovative programs, which include the traditional Master of Business Administration, the Executive Management Program, a Master of Science in Financial Engineering, and the Masters of Arts Management. The Drucker School's programs and degrees are unique in their focus on management as a liberal art, rather than specific concentrations on the core business functions such as accounting, finance, or marketing.

Claremont Graduate University is an Equal Opportunity Employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, creed, place of national origin, age, gender, sex, sexual orientation, or physical handicap in its employment practice and in admission of students to educational programs and activities in accordance with the requirements of Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 and other applicable laws. CGU is committed to affirmative action in employment practices regarding ethnic minorities, the physically handicapped, Vietnam-era veterans, and women. In addition to meeting its obligations under federal and state law, Claremont Graduate University is committed to increasing faculty diversity. CGU complies with the guidelines set forth by the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990. If you have special needs with the application process, notify us at the address above as soon as possible. Reasonable efforts will be made to accommodate your special needs.

In addition to meeting fully its obligations under federal and state law, CGU is committed to creating a community in which a diverse population can live and work in an atmosphere of tolerance, civility, and respect for the rights and sensibilities of each individual, without regard to economic status, ethnic background, political views, sexual orientation, gender, religion, or other personal characteristics or beliefs.

